December 21, 1972

The Honorable Richard Helms
The Director of Central Intelligence
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Dick:

Immediately after the New Year, the Senior Seminar will move into the international relations phase of its curriculum. Visits to the Central Intelligence Agency have always been an important, and very successful, feature of this phase of our studies.

Members of the Fifteenth Senior Seminar sent by CIA have been working with your staff on a proposed program for a "Day at CIA." Their plans are excellent, and I hope that we can go forward on the date they propose - Monday, January 15.

I know you are familiar with the Senior Seminar. For your ready reference I enclose our illustrated brochure, our current "Description of Course", a roster of Members of the Fifteenth Senior Seminar, and a compilation of their biographies.

I hope that you will be able to spend even a little time with our Members, even though it is on the eve of your departure.

With warmest good wishes,

Sincerely,

Samuel D. Berger
Coordinator

FOREIGN SERVICE INSTITUTE
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE

AN ADVANCED TRAINING PROGRAM

The Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy is the Federal Government's most advanced executive development program in the foreign affairs field. This select, ten-month program, begun in 1958, is conducted annually by the Foreign Service Institute, Department of State

Twenty-six senior career officers of the Department of State, the United States Information Agency, Agency for International Development, Central Intelligence Agency, Government Accounting Office, Department of Defense and the Armed Services, constitute the Fifteenth Seminar. Members average age is forty-six and their average length of Government service is twenty-two years.

AN OBJECTIVE:

Updating knowledge of the USA

One major goal of the Seminar is to update Members' knowledge of domestic U.S. affairs. The study of current issues - political, economic and social - in this country and of contemporary trends in American science, industry and cultural life is a major feature of the Seminar's curriculum. On the spot exchanges with leaders in these fields and with eminent educators, business men, labor leaders and chief executives of states and municipalities during field trips are an important component of the Seminar program.

This exposure enhances Members' ability to understand and interpret dynamic changes in the United States and to reach thoughtful judgements which will be of help in their future official capacities.

The study of domestic affairs is intended as a supplement to the Seminar's study of foreign policy problems. The Seminar program includes individual travel to regions of the world in which Members have a special interest. These trips result in reports and case studies useful to Federal Agencies.
